
FMP pitches

— Jack Mercer —

What is mystery?

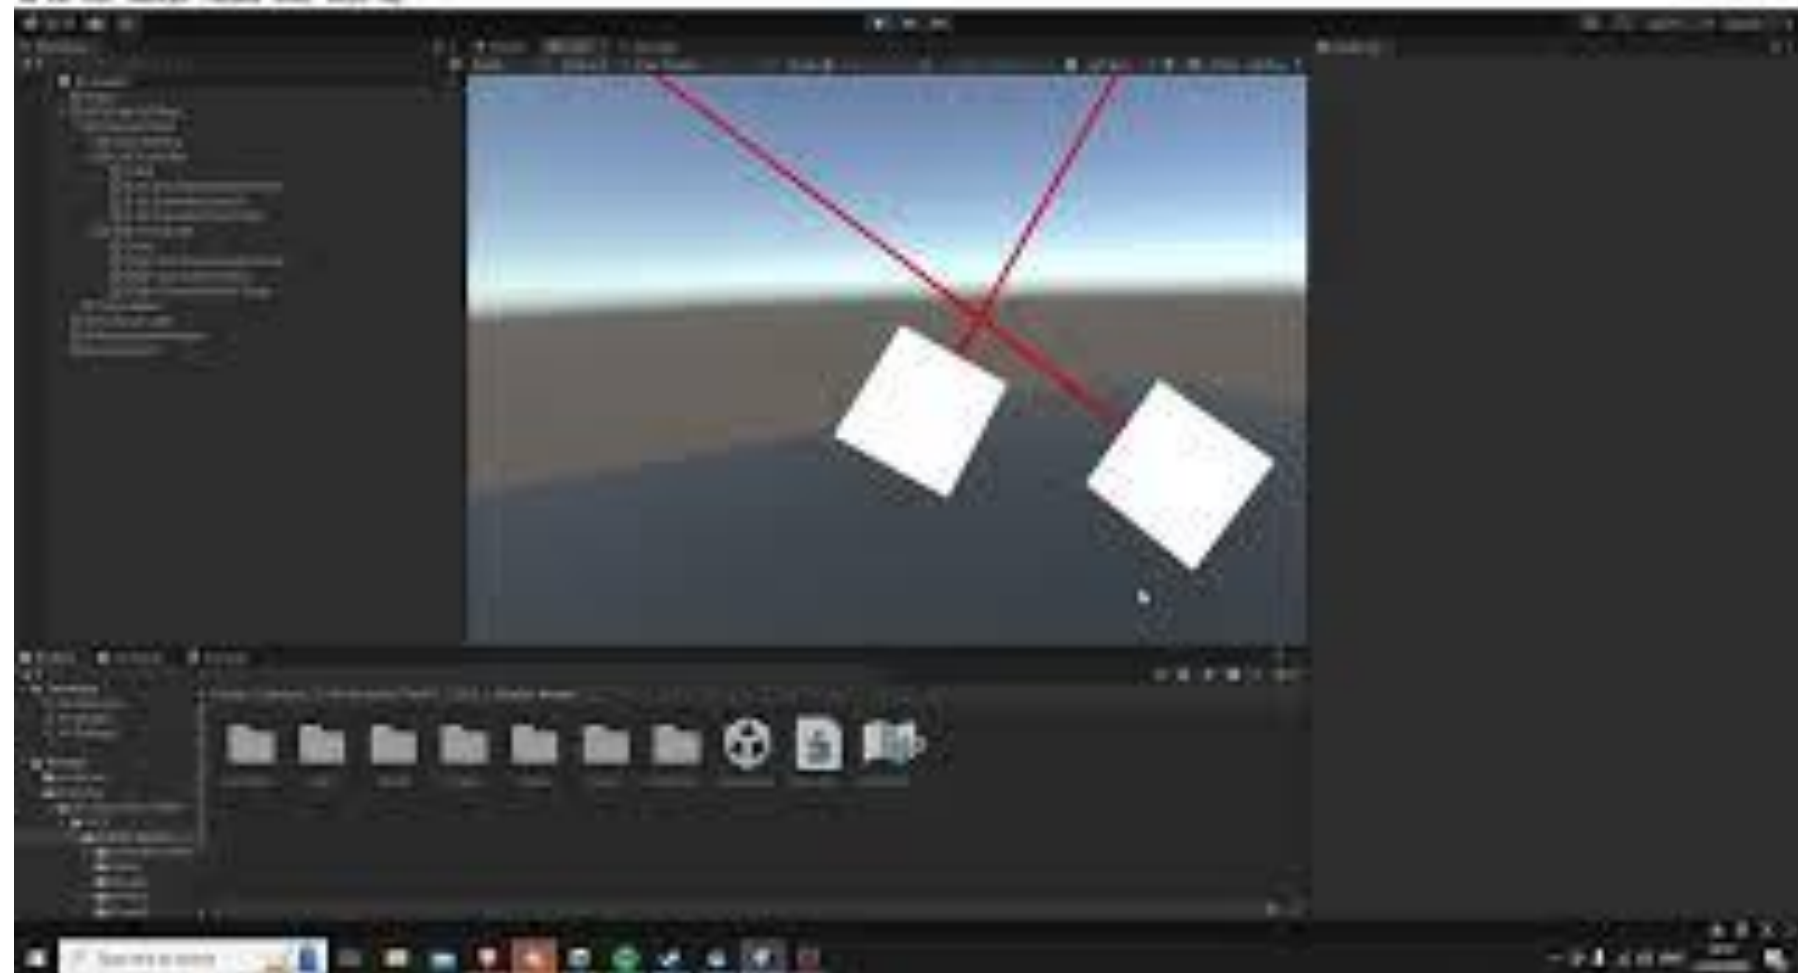

- Unearthing the unknown
- Horror
- Exploration
- Storytelling

Idea 1 - Unity VR experience

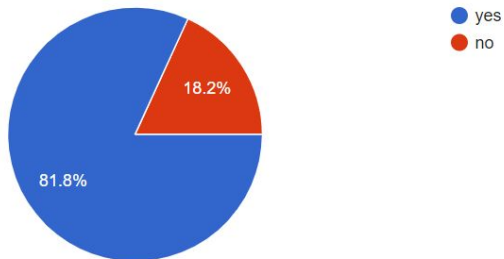

- VR is one of my biggest passions
- Great tool for storytelling
- Unity allows for creative worldbuilding

Why is this a good idea?

Is Virtual Reality a better platform for immersive storytelling?

11 responses

If yes, please explain why

8 responses

It's a lot more interactive, like you feel like you're part of the story instead of reading words or watching a video an interactable 3D dimension allows for gameplay and experiences that was previously never possible with simply a controller and a flatscreen

more realistic than normal games

Well its immersive because you are in it

When playing in VR you're chances and ability to interact with the story is widened

you get more absorbed in the story

Virtual Reality allows for more interactive camera control from the player if done well

I still feel like truly immersive and lifelike VR is a few years away but there have been some amazing projects already enhanced by VR, like Before Your Eyes (playable with a webcam but massively better in

Idea 2 - Social VR avatar

- Already experienced
- Guaranteed amazing first hand research
- Provable example of a successful product

Avali vrchat avatar - Floofvali

★ 4.6 (15)

$25+

Idea generation for the model

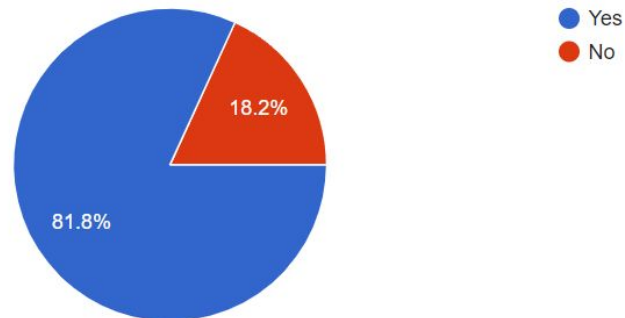

cat skull references

Why is this a good idea?

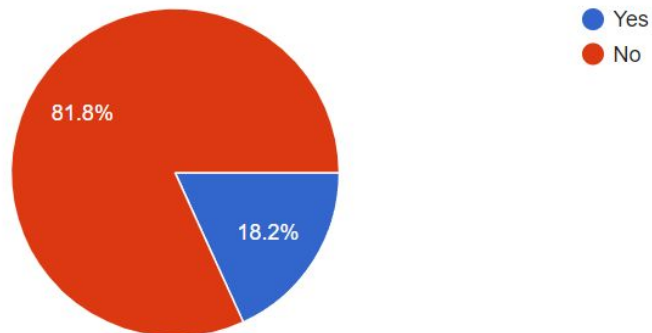

Have you ever used a fictional character, or original character as a profile picture?

11 responses

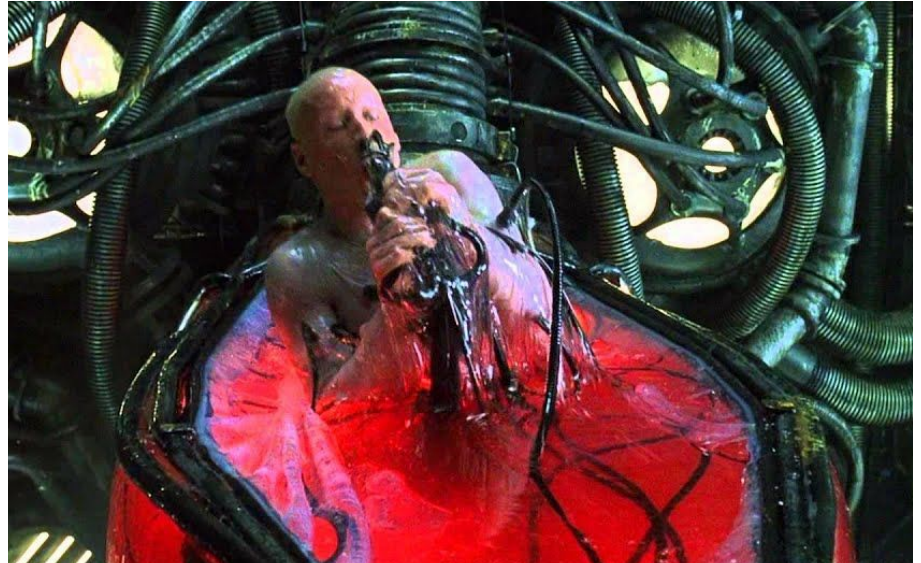

Do you use your real face and name to display yourself online?

11 responses

Idea 3 - Matrix inspired animation

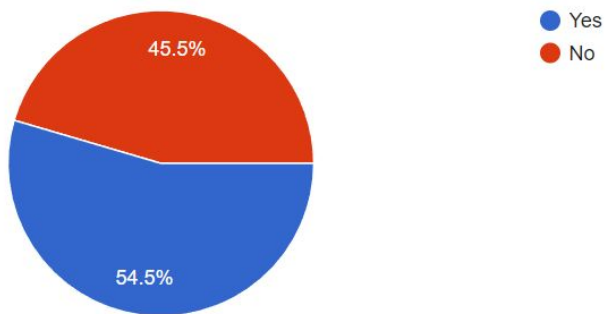

- Fits the theme very well
- Blender
- Two computers

Why is this a good idea?

If someone told you that your entire existence is actually just a teenage boy playing a computer game in the year 3247, that we are simply just NPC's in a future supercomputer, and all of our thoughts and actions are actually predetermined, would that make you slightly uncomfortable?

11 responses

Final thoughts:

